

Font problems in 'help' windows.

I recently discovered that certain fonts (such as Arial) can be mangled by updates to the 'Snow Leopard' operating system, OS X 10.6.x. This results in help windows in the Warthog software showing plain text instead of formatted text.

If your help screens don't show correct formatting (for example, the title of the 'Introduction to LabAnalyst' page should be in dark blue boldface, in a large font), make sure you have the 'Arial' font family correctly installed (including Regular, Italic, Bold, and Bold Italic). This can be done with the FontBook application. Remove duplicates but make sure the 'Ariel Bold' font in particular is correctly installed.
